

This article is also available for viewing online at <http://support.ngin.com/questions.php?questionid=43>

Page Permission Types

Each NGIN website contains multiple levels of permissions to control the way members can access and edit information. Members must be logged into the website to gain access to the different permission types. Permission types include the following:

Webmaster

A member with webmaster access has complete control over all pages, content and assigning other members to different permission types.

Admin Control Panel Access

Members with this permission type can access additional site settings and functionality. Access can be granted to the different website tools and modules which include the following:

- Website Admin - allows control of the different website features and tools such as left-panel graphics, power poll, schedule upload and default tags.
- Registration - allows control of viewing registration records, generating reports and sending messages to registrants.
- Financials - allows for viewing of financial information from online registrations.

General User Page Permission Types:

Owner, Edit and View

The guide below outlines page permission features and their corresponding levels. Some features are inherited up or down the hierarchy of the sitemap, and are outlined below.

Feature	 Owner	 Edit	 View	Direction Inherited Within Sitemap
View "Private" page	✓	✓	✓	Up (parent pages)
Add Page Elements and edit content	✓	✓	-	Down (children pages)
Access "Disabled" page	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Edit page options	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Move or delete page	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Assign page permissions to Profiles and Groups	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Create new Groups	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Send messages to Group Members	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)
Create new pages	✓	-	-	Down (children pages)

Owner Permission Use Examples

You have the ability to assign other users the ability to grant access within specific sections of your website using the "Owner" permission level.

This means that a coach or team manager who has "Owner" access to their team page may now hand out editing or private view access to players or parents. For example, a coach may create a private page under their team called "Contacts." They can then navigate to that page, choose the permissions tab and locate each parent's website account and give them access to view that private page. This also allows teams to give editing access to a trusted mom or dad to update a "Team Photos" page for example. This same concept has been applied throughout your entire site, so that the users with "Owner" permission to a given page, now have the ability to hand out access to that page and the pages beneath it.