

Bed Bug Symptoms

Actual Sighting

Indications of the presence of bed bugs can manifest in a few different ways. You could see the actual bug crawling on your bed, couch, walls, floor, etc...

Red Welts

At times, you may not see the actual bug due to the fact that it tends to feed at night and hide during the day. If the bug is in fact feeding at night, you may wake up with bed bug bites. These bites tend to be red welts on the upper portion of the body (from the waistline up) and can appear as a row of bites instead of one single bite.

Fecal Material

Everybody reacts differently to bug bites. With certain people, a bed bug bite may not appear directly after the bug feeds or possibly not appear at all. In a situation where you have not seen a bug or received a bite, you may still see bed bug fecal material. Bed bug feces show up as small, black dots or smears wherever the bed bugs are resting (on the mattress, boxspring, headboard, etc...).
